Intelli Proof monitors are perfectly suited to the needs and requirements of the professional image and graphics editing. The integrated hardware calibration adjusts luminance, white point and luminance with 36 bit precision directly in the monitor. The iColor Display calibration software provides optimized the monitor automatically find and color space representation and diagnostic functions are also a statement about the accuracy of the calibration. Together with the issuance of billions of colors makes this soft proofing of high quality and reliable prediction of the subsequent printing result.

In the Publishing Practice July / August 2005, the new Intelli Proof 213 was already winner:

"Quato provides the Intelli Proof 21 V2 [= Intelli Proof 213] with the iColor Proof IP software. The setting of the test in the most comprehensive but manageable solution. [...] The results of the Intelli Proof 21 V2 are exemplary. The white point is taken almost exactly, and no other calibration in the test sequence is a more accurate gray profile. [...] The visual inspection of the Intelli Proof leaves no criticism: a clean gray gradient to the depths and a perfect match with the proof. [...] Thanks to the Hitachi panels are [...] viewing angle-dependent color changes, no issue. "
